

Barry Moore

Barry Moore is a digital artist who creates art from scratch & transforms photographs into art using computer software. He comes from a family of visual artists. His mother is a painter and his father was an award winning news photographer. Growing up in this household, he developed an appreciation for the impact of the visual arts, pursuing both painting and photography as hobbies. After retiring from a career in information technology, he was able to combine his skills into the digital art medium he uses today. He is primarily self-taught in both traditional and digital mediums.

Moore's art and technology skills have led him to work with such organizations as the Blumenthal Performing Arts Center, Piedmont Dance Theatre, Cannon Foundation, UNC Nutrition Research Institute, Oakboro Regional Museum of History, and the Kannapolis Historical Society. He is also a member of the Cabarrus Art Guild. Today, Moore's company, RBS Productions, offers services related to photographic restoration and the transforming of photographs into art.
